1 Introduction

At the European Cities' Tourism meeting in Amsterdam in September 1996 members discussed the possibility of putting together a common set of questions which European Cities' Tourism members would use as the basis for any visitor survey they may undertake in their respective cities. These core questions would produce useful information at an individual city level and would allow data to be also analysed centrally so that comparisons would become possible across European Cities' Tourism member cities.

There are two principle advantages of using consistent core questions across European Cities' Tourism cities. Firstly the participating cities which share their data have access to valuable comparative information for a fraction of the cost of commissioning research in competitor cities. Each city only has to commission a field research company or institute in their own city and share their data. Secondly, European Cities' Tourism members were convinced that the European Union would be interested in having access to this city tourism database and might be prepared to part-fund the project on a regular basis.

The project was carried out by the Research and Statistics Working Group, chaired by Mrs. Andrea Weecks¹ and advised by Mrs. Lynn Jones² (fieldwork guidelines) and Dr. Karl Wöber³ (data entry and coding), represented by members from Barcelona, Budapest, Dublin, Edinburgh, Graz, Lisbon, Prague, St. Etienne, and Tarragona.

The core questions were based upon those used in the Edinburgh Visitor Survey, but adapted to meet the overall requirements which were put forward by all interested cities. General agreement was reached on such matters as type of visitors to be included in the survey, how accommodation classification, and the importance of using the same survey methodology so as to avoid some cities adopting the self completion survey method whilst others use face-to-face interviews. All these points and many more were discussed and agreement sought – not to be dictatorial but in order to achieve the level of consistency necessary for comparative analysis.

The present manual is the first trial in order to make international city tourism surveys more comparable and is subject to future discussions and improvements.

2 Background and Objectives

One of the objectives of European Cities Tourism is to improve the compatibility and integration of statistics between cities. A great benefit of participation in the regular European Cities' Tourism meetings is that there is the opportunity for good ideas to be discussed and developed. The development and progress of these ideas of course depends on the willingness or expertise of individual members to move them forward.

The proposal put forward by European Cities Tourism is a model for a structured visitor survey questionnaire which could be used by city tourist offices (CTOs) when they undertake or consider undertaking market research amongst their visitors. The questionnaire includes a set of core questions relevant to all European Cities' Tourism cities. This data gives a detailed understanding of the leisure tourism market, and visitors' perceptions of the city, its facilities and services. The data will be used to provide a comparative analysis of visitor opinion across all the participating cities. Of course additional city-specific questions can be added by each city, if they wish.

Objectives of the Handbook

- To provide guidelines for cities which have little or no experience of undertaking city visitor surveys. To help them to manage the research process - specifically matters relating to the execution of the fieldwork (interviewing.)
- To enable more experienced cities to ensure that the methods they use are compatible with all other European Cities Tourism cities, so that meaningful comparisons are achieved.

3 Important Pre-Survey Considerations

Resources

It is worth taking the time to consider right at the start whether you have the physical and financial resources in place to undertake any kind of visitor survey. If you have no budget but wish to undertake the work and need to go to a potential funding partner with a request for money, you will first have to find out the cost. The brief which you send out will provide this information. (see below)

Expectations

Whatever budget you have, you must be realistic in your expectations. The objectives of this Eurocity Survey have been agreed by European Cities Tourism and are quite clear. Any city wishing to take advantage of comparing themselves with other cities across all the variables, using the European Cities Tourism Eurocity Questionnaire, must adhere to these objectives. You cannot expect to receive comparative data if you decide to do only, for example, 300 interviews conducted at the weekend in one location for only 2 months of the year. Equally there is not much point in completing the fieldwork if you do not have the means to enter the data and transfer it for comparative analysis.

The brief

The brief is a statement from you which outlines the background, main objectives, methodology, timing, analysis and reporting requirements of the survey. If you intend to commission a market research agency, this will give them all the information they need upon which to base their costs in the proposal that they will send to you. For example they will need to know:

- how many interviews are needed
- that they are face to face interviews
- that they will take place near places of interest and in the main squares
- that they will take place all year round
- that the interviews will be 15 minutes long.

The agency will then calculate the numbers of interviewer shifts needed and how much this will cost.

This process is equally necessary even if you do not employ a professional market research company to undertake the work. If for example you wish to use students you will need to present a brief to a university and you should expect to receive a proposal from them even if they are going to do the fieldwork at a greatly reduced cost.

It is also important for you to have a record of what has been agreed by both parties – for example who is responsible for what at each stage of the research, when it should be completed by, and at what cost.

Questions

In addition to the core questions which have been agreed each city may have a small number of other questions. The number must be kept to a minimum in order to avoid making the questionnaire too lengthy.

Management

You now need to consider whether you have the time to supervise the project yourself. This will mean checking everything at the set-up period and again at the data analysis stage. This applies whether or not you are dealing with an agency, and even more time will be required if you are responsible for organising the fieldwork yourself - you will have to ensure that the interviewers are trained and briefed and that the shifts are completed properly. If you feel that you either cannot give sufficient time to the project or are not familiar enough with handling such work, then you must ensure that you are able to call on the services of someone who has the time and the right background.

4 Survey Methodology

Face-to-face interviews are essential for this type of survey. They enable close control over the composition of the sample and allow for a wide range of questioning techniques. In addition there is the guarantee that the questions have been answered in the order in which they are set out.

Self-completion questionnaires are recommended for collecting information about spend. Asking this type of information in the face-to-face interview is possible but the replies will be influenced by the timing of the interview relative to the overall length of stay in the city. For example, interviewing a respondent on the second day of their 5-day visit is likely to produce a different set of answers in comparison to an interview on the last day of their visit. It would also make the questionnaire unacceptably long if the spend questions were asked face-to-face.

For the Eurocity Survey, self-completion questionnaires should be distributed at the end of the face-to-face interview and the interviewer should explain briefly what the respondent should do. A reply-paid envelope should be attached to the questionnaire. Experience in Edinburgh has shown that having a prize draw is an incentive to respondents to complete and return the questionnaire. The prize could be, for example, a two night stay in a hotel in the city (exclusive of access costs), which would be used either by the respondent or a friend or family member. Each city should be responsible for organising its own prize.

4.1 Interviews

Number of interviews

It is recommended that each city carry out 1,500-2,000 interviews. This may seem a lot especially for a smaller city. However this volume is necessary because:

- ◆ There must be enough interviews to provide a representative sample of the city's visitors.
- ◆ These numbers will allow the possibility of sub-analysis of most subsets of visitors for the city's own use and for comparative purposes.
- ◆ It is not possible to establish year-on-year trend data from a smaller sample; for example, a small sample might produce 21 Americans one year and 52 the next, but this would be too small a numerical difference to be a reliable indicator of a trend.
- ◆ Small cohort sizes lead to increased error when weighting is applied.

All cities are likely to have large numbers of visitors and 1,500-2,000 will cover all the cities' needs on this type of survey.

European Cities Tourism

Quotas

It is advisable to set quota targets for the sample, wherever possible based on the regional or national statistics, particularly for origin of visitors.

If information is available the quotas should be set in the following categories:

- place of residence of both overseas and domestic visitors
- those staying overnight and those on a day visit

and, if data is available

- age
- sex

If information is not available it is still advisable to set certain targets, most importantly for place of residence. The proportion of overseas to domestic and overnight to day visitors should reflect annual trends in each city. This will avoid for example a situation where by chance only a very small number of overseas visitors are interviewed when it is known that the city is a popular international tourism destination. It is also important to ensure that a sufficient number of visitors staying overnight are interviewed.

Day visitors are also important. They do not tend to spend as much per day as those staying overnight and in many cities the numbers of day visitors tend to be very high. However it will be for the individual city to determine the proportion of day visitors they need to interview. Some cities are close to national borders and may have many day visitors not only from their own country but from neighbouring countries; others are geographically situated in the centre of a country and may have mostly domestic day visitors. These factors will influence the level of analysis possible and therefore the number of day visitors you need to interview.

It is also important to agree whether or not, at the analysis stage, the survey data is weighted to reflect quota targets. It is recommended that the data is weighted to ensure that the sample is as representative as possible of the known visitor population.

Restrictions

Business visitors should be included only if they are staying at least one night away from home in the city. In fact experience in Edinburgh has shown that very few business visitors are picked up because they tend to be unavailable for interview during the daytime, as they are likely to be in meetings or attending conferences.

Members of coach parties should as a rule only be asked if they appear to be walking around with plenty of time – most coach parties have limited time at each attraction and their members will not be prepared to stop and be interviewed. However if the coach market is an important part of your market then you may need to consider an alternative way of gathering data about this market.

Finally, it is important to have a procedure to make sure that when approaching a group of people it is not always one type of person, for example the oldest in the group, who is interviewed. The accepted method for choosing who to interview in a couple or a group is by interviewing the person whose birthday falls first in the year- this ensures that the process of choosing is completely random.

Interviewing Schedule

It is important that the interviewing schedule is designed to cover the complete period i.e. the full twelve months. There should be no bias in the choice of days for interviewing – all days of the week and all weeks of the month should be covered within the period of the survey. However the interviewing schedule should reflect what is known about when visitors are most likely to come to the city; for example, summer is the busiest period for most cities, and others have important festivals at different times of the year; or at certain times of the year it may be necessary to concentrate much more of the interviewing on the weekends.

Different types of visitors may be "out-and-about" at different times of the day, therefore interviewing shifts should be arranged so that the whole day is covered. This is important – for example, if shifts always took place from 9.00 – 12.00, interviewers would miss all those visitors who were out of the city on a coach tour in the morning but spending the afternoon in the city. Interviews usually take place between 10.00 – 20.00 during the summer months, with the main concentration between 12.00 – 18.00. In the winter, interviewing should be restricted to the hours of daylight unless there is a specific, important event taking place in the evening, but this is an exception. As a general guideline, interviewers should not be asked to work after dark.

4.2 Survey Planning & Supervision

Shifts

At the beginning of the project cities should determine, or the agency will advise, the number of shifts required to achieve the interview target. Shifts should be planned over the year in accordance with peak holiday periods, special events etc. For general guidance, a productive shift size, including breaks for the interviewer, is about 6 hours, e.g. 10.00 to 16.00, and with a questionnaire of 20 minutes length 10 interviews per shift would be achieved. Therefore for 2,000 interviews, in the region of 200 shifts would be required over the year.

Monitoring against targets

A monthly record should be maintained of interview numbers achieved against targets; a suggested format is contained within Appendix 2. Cities should be ready to adjust interviewing schedules to take account of shortfalls in meeting targets – for example if weather has been very poor, and to help to ensure that you have interviewed the correct number of visitors in each category in your quota.

European Cities Tourism

The interviewers

The two main options are to use interviewers from market research agencies or students.

Agency interviewers

It is preferable to use market research agency interviewers, who should be trained to a professional standard. Cities should ask for evidence of training and professional industry quality standards held by the fieldwork agency or market research company. The benefits of using market research agency interviewers are considerable:

- ◆ They are trained and they will have experience. It is not as easy as it seems to go out in the streets and interview people competently!
- ◆ They will often be able to tell the agency field supervisor if there is a problem for example with the location, with a specific question or with the routing instructions on the questionnaire.
- ◆ The interviewers are also trained to adhere rigidly to the exact words written down in the questionnaire and to probe on appropriate questions.
- ◆ If some of the interviews do not come up to standard, the agency will be obliged to do them again at no additional cost.
- ◆ After each interview session the questionnaires are returned and checked to ensure that they have been filled in correctly. Check-backs are undertaken as a quality control measure. The agency telephones a proportion of those visitors interviewed, to confirm that the interviews actually took place – so there is very little chance of an interviewer handing in bogus questionnaires!

Students

Students are usually considerably cheaper. However there are a number of disadvantages to using students. They are available for only certain periods of the year, they are usually untrained, and they are not governed by any market research "code of conduct". We suggest that if students have to be used for reasons of economy then they should ideally be tourism students so that they will have at least some understanding of the industry and issues concerned. Before students are used for interviewing they must certainly be fully trained with the following aspects being especially important:

European Cities Tourism

- ◆ For all closed questions, if the respondent does not reply or seems puzzled, interviewers should simply repeat the question word-for-word, and say no more. They must not offer any explanations.
- ◆ For open-ended questions, interviewers should not lead the respondents; they may probe but not prompt. For example:

"What do you like best about "Eurocity"?":

| 3. Yes. | | |

- ◆ All instructions on the questionnaire must be followed, and questions should be asked in strict order; there should be no deviation from this.
- ◆ Non-agency interviewers must also have clear instructions regarding the times they are due to interview, and it would be advisable to use time sheets.
- ◆ Interviewers, whether agency or students, must be fully briefed on the survey and the questionnaire itself before they start the project. You cannot expect good work to be done if you do not give proper instructions in the first place.

Location of interviews

Interviews should take place in locations where visitors are likely to be concentrated, such as outside major visitors attractions, in major city squares or plazas, city shopping centres and historic areas of the city. If a city has a large number of major attractions, interview locations should be rotated so that all the main catchment areas for visitors are covered over the year on a regular basis. Sampling and Fieldwork Schedule

The methodology for this type of visitor survey is based on the hypothesis that, at some time during their visit to a city, a visitor will go to one of the main attractions or a specific location within the city. Consequently, careful selection of the interview locations is critical to the success of the survey in generating a representative sample of visitors.

If the appropriate information is available from other surveys, it is advisable to set quota targets for the sample. Origin of visitors would be of particular importance, with demographic quotas such as age-group of secondary importance. Related to this, it will be important to agree whether, at the analysis stage, the survey data is weighted to reflect these quota targets or left unweighted. Our recommendation would be for the data to be weighted to ensure that the sample is as representative as possible of the population to be covered.

Within a group of people, it is important that some selection procedure is adopted to ensure that one member of the group, such as the oldest person, does not always volunteer himself or herself to be the respondent.

European Cities Tourism

Fieldwork Schedule

It is important that the fieldwork schedule for the survey is designed to encompass the complete period of the survey. Only interviewing on one day of the week or on the third Wednesday of every month is not the way to devise the schedule of fieldwork. There should be no inherent bias in the choice of days for interviewing – all days of the week and all weeks of the month should be covered within the period of the survey.

At certain times of year, especially outside the peak summer period, it may be necessary to concentrate much of the interviewing on the weekends to reflect the pattern of visits to the city.

The normal timing of interviews is between 10.00 – 20.00 hours during the summer months, with the main concentration being in the period 12.00 – 18.00 hours. In the winter months, this time period for interviewing should be restricted to the hours of daylight. The only reason for extending the interview period would be to include visitors to a specific event which takes place in the evening.

4.3 The Questionnaire

Length

As a general rule for a face-to-face street interview, questionnaires should run for no longer than 15 minutes. This questionnaire runs for at least 16 minutes. (NB it has been tested in English). If the city wishes to add its own additional questions to the core questions the time should still not exceed 20 minutes at the most. Experience indicates that for a street interview, even on a topic which respondents usually find interesting 15-20 minutes is a maximum length. Any longer and the respondent will lose interest or they may not agree to be interviewed in the first place. After all they are here to enjoy your city, not spend too much time answering your questionnaire!

Pilot Interviews

Before starting the survey cities must try out the questionnaire with a group of visitors (not those included in the actual survey sample) to identify any problems the interviewer or respondent may have, for example with understanding of specific questions or routing.

Respondents' personal details and 10% check-back

All the respondents' personal details – name & address, telephone number, age, socio-demographic category etc. should be entered on the front cover, as you will see. However these details are not asked until the end of the interview when a rapport has been established with the interviewer. (They are recorded at the front to aid the check-back process).

These details are important and must be sought from all respondents although occasionally a respondent may refuse to divulge their age or perhaps the occupation of the main householder. The name and address are necessary to enable a 10% check-back to ensure that respondents were actually interviewed. This should be carried out whether an agency is used or not.

Show cards

It is very important to note that where the questionnaire indicates that a show card is to be used, this must be done. Showcards ensure that respondents focus only on the responses that have been set for that particular question. If they are instead shown the questionnaire itself they may be distracted; or more importantly they may be influenced in their response by the questions that follow.

Multiple choice core questions

Some cities may feel that not all the choices in certain core questions apply in their city, for example they may not have a city tram or metro system. However all possibilities (in this case of transport) must be included in every questionnaire to cover all transport in all cities.

European Cities Tourism

It is also important to code the questions as they appear in the questionnaire. For example if we take the question on accommodation used by visitors whilst staying in your city. The interviewers must separately code for the type of accommodation which the visitor is staying in. Even if your city is not interested in the differences between those who stay in a hotel and those who stay in bed & breakfast accommodation the responses must be coded. You can of course add the responses for hotels, B&B and even youth hostels together for your own purposes, but if you make the decision to code all accommodation together at the interview stage you have lost the ability to disaggregate. In other words you are losing the opportunity to see if there are any differences in the pattern of behaviour in visiting cities between, for instance, people who stay in expensive serviced accommodation and those who stay in youth hostels.

5 Data Entry and Coding

Following instructions are necessary to ensure that data entry and coding is undertaken so that comparative analysis is possible in a cost-effective way. Participating cities who using this standardisation proposal will receive European Cities Tourism's assistance in data processing and reporting.

5.1 Prerequisites for comparative analysis

In principal data entry has to be organised in table format, i.e. variable names are placed on the top or in the first row of the data entry sheet and each individual questionnaire is entered in a new line. Table 1 shows the first 15 variables of the Eurocity questionnaire. In this example 14 questionnaires have been entered so far.

Table 1 Data entry table

Following programs can be used for data entry: SPSS
 MS Excel
 Lotus 1-2-3
 dBase
 MS Access

In SPSS, dBase or MS Access variable names are defined by field names at the top; In MS Excel or Lotus 1-2-3 the first row contains the names of the variables.

The names of the variable and value labels have to follow the standardisation proposal and should also follow the proposed order. In general, missing values are coded as -1, except for literal fields (open questions) where they should be left empty. Answers to open questions are entered in English language, and summarised by maximum two keywords separated by a single blank space (e.g. visit park).

Tak fordi du tog dig tid til at tale med en af vores interviewere og give os informationer om dit besøg i EUROCITY. European Cities Tourism

Frivilligt:

Gem venligst dette spørgeskema indtil slutningen af dit besøg i EUROACITY og udfyld derefter resten af spørgsmålene og returnér det til os i vedlagte frankerede svarkuvert.

Hvis du udfylder spørgeskemaet og returnerer det vil du indgå i en lodtrækning om et weekendophold for to i EUROACITY (eksklusiv rejse). Hvis du bor i udlandet og ikke har mulighed for at komme tilbage til EUROACITY, kan præmien overdrages til en anden person efter dit valg.

Nedenfor er der en liste med en række kategorier. Skriv venligst et anslået beløb på, hvor mange penge du har brugt indenfor hver kategori i løbet af dit besøg i EUROACITY. Inkludér kun hvad du har brugt i byen og ikke udenfor den. Inkludér venligst alle omkostninger for de personer, der har rejst sammen med dig (fx din ægtefælle, børn etc.), som du har betalt for.

Hvis du ikke har brugt nogle penge indenfor en bestemt kategori så skriv venligst et "0". Hvis du ikke ved hvor meget du har brugt indenfor en bestemt kategori så skriv venligst "Ved ikke" eller "VI" .

Hvis dit besøg i EUROACITY var del af en pakke (fx en pakke som inkluderer din rejse, indkvartering etc.) ved du måske ikke hvor mange penge du har brugt på nogle af kategorierne ovenfor. Hvis det er tilfældet skriv da venligst hvad pakken indeholder nedenfor, og hvor meget pakken har kostet pr person, samt hvor mange dage/nætter på pakken inkluderer.

EVENTUEEL:

European Cities Tourism

Houdt u a.u.b. deze enquête bij u tot het einde van uw bezoek in EUROCITY en completeer het en stuur het terug met de bijgaande (portvrije) antwoord envelop.

Diegenen die deze vragenlijst completeren en terugsturen komen in aanmerking voor deelname aan een loterij voor een weekend voor twee personen in EUROCITY (exclusief de reis). Als u in een overzees land woont en niet in staat bent om terug te keren naar EUROCITY, kan deze prijs worden overgedragen aan iemand van uw keuze.

Onderstaand zijn een aantal categorieën aangegeven. Geef a.u.b. voor iedere categorie aan hoeveel u hieraan ongeveer uitgeeft tijdens uw huidige bezoek in EUROCITY. Geef alleen bestedingen in de stad aan, en niet die daarbuiten. Geef a.u.b. alle bestedingen aan, inclusief die van alle reisgenoten (bijvoorbeeld echtgeno(o)t(e), kinderen enz.) waar u voor heeft betaald.

Als u niets heeft besteed in een bepaalde categorie, vult u dan '0' in. Als u niet weet hoeveel u heeft besteed in een bepaalde categorie, vult u dan a.u.b. 'Weet niet' in.

Köszönjük, hogy rászánta idejét a kérdések megválaszolására és ezzel sok mindent megismertetett velünk Eurocity-beli látogatásáról. Annak érdekében, hogy az Eurocity-be irányuló turizmus gazdasági hatását is valamilyen módon mérni tudjuk, szeretnénk megtudni, hogy Eurocity-beli látogatása idején megközelítőleg mennyi kiadása volt.

European Cities Tourism

OPCIONÁLIS:

Kérjük tartsa meg ezt a kérdőívet Eurocity-beli látogatása végéig majd töltsse ki és küldje el hozzánk a mellékelt felbélyegzett borítékban. Akik kitöltik és visszaküldik ezt a kérdőívet, egy sorsoláson vesznek részt, melyen egy két személyre szóló hétvégét sorsolunk ki Eurocity-be (utazás kivételével) az elérhetőség figyelembevételével. Amennyiben Ön képtelen visszatérni Eurocity-be, úgy a nyeremény az Ön által megnevezett személyre átruházható.

Alul több kategória található. Kérem írja be megközelítőleg mennyit költött Eurocity-beli tartózkodása alatt az alábbi kategóriák szerint. Csak a városon belüli költést tüntesse fel. Kérjük azon személyek költését is számítsa be, (pl. felesége/férje, gyerekek stb.) akiknek Ön fizetett.

Ha egy adott kategóriában semmit sem fizetett, kérjük "0"-t írjon be.

Ha nem tudja mennyit fizetett egy kategóriában, kérem írja be, hogy "Nem tudom" vagy "N/T".

Q.17) Facendo una graduatoria da 1 – 10, dove 10 indica il massimo e 1 il minimo grado, come valuterrebbe complessivamente la sua visita a EUROACITY?

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Grazie per essere stato/a disposto/a a collaborare a questa intervista e a darci qualche informazione in merito alla sua visita ad EUROACITY. Tuttavia, per valutare l'effetto economico del turismo nell'EUROACITY, avremmo bisogno di conoscere quanto vorrà spendere, all'incirca, durante la sua visita alla città.

FACOLTATIVO:

La preghiamo di conservare questo questionario fino alla fine della sua visita ad EUROACITY e di inviarlo, poi, a noi compilato usando l'allegata busta con la risposta pagata.

Coloro che completeranno e restituiranno questo questionario potranno partecipare all'estrazione di un week-end per due persone in EUROACITY (viaggio escluso), secondo la disponibilità. Coloro che vivono all'estero e non avranno la possibilità di ritornare ad EUROACITY, potranno cedere il premio a qualcun altro di loro gradimento.

Qui sotto sono elencate alcune categorie. Indichi, per favore, quanto ha, approssimativamente, speso in ciascuna categoria durante la sua visita ad EUROACITY. Consideri soltanto le spese fatte nell'ambito della città e non fuori di essa. Includa, per favore, anche quanto ha speso per le altre persone che l'accompagnano (p.e.: moglie/ marito, bambini ecc.).

Se in una particolare categoria non ha speso niente, lo indichi, per favore, con uno "0". Se non sa quanto ha speso in una particolare categoria, scriva "Non so" o "N/S".

7 Definitions

A common set of tourism definitions should be used by all participating cities to enable robust comparisons to be made. The following definitions are suggested:

A Tourist Trip is a stay of one or more nights away from home for holidays, visits to friends or relatives, business/conference trips or any other purpose, except such activities as boarding education or semi-permanent employment.

Tourist Nights are those spent away from home using any type of accommodation, or in transit, on a tourist trip.

Tourist Expenditure is spending incurred away from home on a tourist trip and in advance payments for such items as fares and accommodation.

A Leisure Tourist Trip is a trip away from home of between one and sixty nights for a holiday or to visit friends or relatives.

A Day Trip, for the purpose of the survey questionnaire, is defined as a period away from home on a leisure trip not involving an overnight stay, but excluding general shopping, business and being in transit.

Spend – The definitions of spend are described on the self completion questionnaire

8 Appendix 1 – Glossary Of Terms

Used in Guidelines & Questionnaire

Brief	A statement from the sponsor setting out the background, main objectives, methodology, timing, analysis and reporting requirements of a survey, with a request for the costs associated with undertaking the work.
Briefing	Briefing of interviewers prior to a survey is intended to ensure that they understand fully the task to be undertaken.
Closed question	A question which has a limited number of logical answers (e.g. "yes" or "no" or a list of alternatives.)
Cohort	A group of people with a statistic in common.
Desk research	Collection, sifting and interpreting of published data.
Editing	Procedures for tidying up survey data. These begin with the inspection of returned questionnaires to ensure that they conform with the sampling requirements and that key questions have been answered.
Face-to-face interview	One which is conducted in person by the interviewer with the respondent, not on the telephone.
Filter	An instruction printed on a questionnaire as to which questions should be asked next, depending on previous answers.
Head of household	The member of a household who either owns the accommodation occupied by the household or is responsible for the rent. Or, if the accommodation is occupied free of rent, the person having it free of rent. If however this person is a married woman whose husband is also a member of the household, then the husband counts as the head of the household.
Household	A private household consists of one or more people living together whose food and other household expenses are usually managed as one unit.
Interviewer	The person asking the questions.
Interviewer instructions	Directions printed on the questionnaire, including filters and skips. They are usually distinguished from the questions by the use of capitals, bold face or italic type.
Open-ended question	As opposed to a closed question, one where the answer is recorded verbatim (or as fully as is practicable) The answers are coded at a later stage.
Pre-coded question	A question for which the respondent is constrained to choose one or more from a set of allowable answers, or where the interviewer is similarly constrained in recording the answer given. E.g. for the question "How did you travel to Eurocity?" the choice may be air/car/coach/bus/taxi/train, but there will be a line for "other" to allow for the few who may say they used some other form of transport or walked.
Primary data	Data collected at source as opposed to secondary data. The Eurocity Survey is the collection of primary data.
Probe	Non-directive technique to obtain an answer. (see p.7)

Project Manager	The person who oversees the project to ensure that the survey is undertaken in accordance with the guidelines as laid down.
Prompt	As distinct from a probe, this term covers any method used to suggest possible answers to a question. NB the interviewer should not prompt unless there is an instruction to do so. The result would be to introduce bias into the data. (see p.7)
Quality control	In a market research project, formal checks to ensure that the work has been carried out properly.
Quota	A statement of the number and types of people that an interviewer is required to interview.
Respondent(s)	The visitor(s) taking part in the survey.
Routing	Filters and skips included in the interviewer instructions.
Self-completion questionnaire	One that is completed by the respondent rather than by the interviewer.
Show card	A card which lists the possible answers to a question.
Skip	Direction to exclude certain questions and an instruction to go to an indicated question.
Structured questionnaire	One which sets out precisely the wording of the questions and the order in which they are to be asked. The Eurocity questionnaire is structured.
Supervisor/Field Supervisor	An agency supervisor is responsible for ensuring that the interviews are undertaken professionally in accordance with the instructions for the schedule. They ensure that the targets are achieved as specified each month and are responsible for ensuring that the interviewers are trained and booked for the work. If students are used all these procedures should be undertaken by the supervisor or project manager appointed by the city or university.
Weighting	A factor by which some quantity is multiplied to make it comparable with others.
